

Unisharktang

Unisharktang is a very rare and mythical creature that has dwelled on the Earth since the age of the dinosaurs – more than 65 million years ago. Now considered one of the most dangerous and endangered animals on the planet, Unisharktang is most sought after for its unique powers that it possesses.

Appearance

Unisharktang has only been sighted on rare occasions when the moon obscures the sun in a solar eclipse. When it has been sighted, it has been described as having the head of a Great White Shark with its body best matching a wild mustang with four nimble legs and a fluffy horse-like tail. Some of these eyewitnesses have claimed to see a pointed horn atop its head sparking the legends that it descends from the once mighty unicorns that roamed the Earth. Its head can only be described as a colossal, powerful killing machine with deadly sharp teeth. Its skin is a light tone of grey, rough and bumpy if you were to caress your hand over it.

- An artist's impression of Unisharktang. Note the mystical horn atop its head.

Unusually, the body of Unisharktang is quite unique in the animal world, being both cuddly and nimble yet its skin is as rubbery as a flapping seal. With the help of this rubbery skin, Unisharktang is able to swim at great speeds underwater – the water flowing past its skin allowing it to reach immense speeds. Further sightings of this fascinating animal will help us to prove that it possesses all these features, yet without photographs, the description of this animal relies on the memory of those who have witnessed its beauty and strength.

Habitat

Unisharktang is a most unusual creature as it does not restrict itself to a particular part of the world. Unisharktang is most comfortable dwelling in the deepest, darkest oceans of the Pacific and travels around South America to reach the Atlantic Ocean. It has been known to come ashore onto land (where a lot of sightings have taken place) and gallop across a beach in the dead of night looking for any food that has been left by tourists. Once Unisharktang re-enters the water, it seeks out the idyllic reefs of the ocean once again, attracted by the beauty and wonder of the plants that adorn the rough rocks.

- The wonderful colours of the Unisharktang's habitat.

Diet

Unisharktang is well known for consuming a variety of sea animals such as

- Dolphins
- killer whales
- penguins

There has also been discoveries of immense blue whales floating on the ocean's surface with mammoth chunks having been ripped out of their bodies, a clear sign of Unisharktang becoming more bold in seizing and killing its prey. This amazing animal does have a ferocious appetite and will boldly come ashore to eat food on the beach that has been left by littering tourists